CHECKLIST

Check your Australian partner before you apply for a visa

When you met a person, your relationship is advancing to the next level, and you are thinking about how to move to Australia or at least coming to Australia to check your proposed partner's habitat.

For each of you who is considering getting an Australian partner visa in Australia or overseas, I would suggest going through the following checklist to review your options and possibilities.

your partner/potential partner status in Australia

It will be important to understand what visas you may be eligible for.

	Prospective Marriage visa SC300	Partner visas SC309 / 820	NZ citizen partner visa SC461
Australian citizen or PR visa holder, never sponsored anyone before and came to Australia not sponsored	Yes	Yes	No
NZ citizen that lived in Australia before 2001	Yes	Yes	No
NZ citizen	No	No	Yes

the sponsorship background of your potential sponsor

If your partner was sponsored before for a partner visa, there is 5 years limitation from the date when the first sponsored visa is lodged, to be able to sponsor you. Actually, it is only 2 sponsorship per lifetime available (unless exceptional circumstances apply).

CHECK the marital status of your potential partner

Ask whether your partner is divorced/was in a relationship before. It will give you an indication of the commitment and possibility to have 50/50 children arrangements.

CHECK your partner's character background

Request your partner to check/provide you with police clearance certificates from each country where your partner lived for more than 1 year in the past 10 years. Yes, I know, it does not sound romantic, however, it will save you from trouble at a later stage.

and consider the opinions of the biological parents of your children

If you have children under 18 and you are proposing to bring children with you to Australia, you will need to make sure you have form 1229 signed by both biological parents or you have court order to be able to travel/migrate with your child.

and understand the costs of living in Australia

When you are planning to come to Australia holding a temporary visa or with children, you will have to understand the costs of living and education depending on your visa choices and ask your potential partner-sponsor whether he/she is going to support you financially.

CHECK your level of English proficiency

Currently, it is not compulsory to have an English test examination when you are applying for a partner visa, however, it is always a good idea to have a decent level of English when you are planning to migrate to English speaking country.

Having a good level of English proficiency is extremely helpful for settling in Australia with school-age children, establishing new family relationships, finding employment, and making friends.

CONSIDER what are you planning to do in Australia: career, study or work

Conducting proactive research can serve as your preparation before coming to Australia, providing you with preferences and a comprehensive understanding of various aspects. This proactive approach will help make your transition less stressful, and more efficient, and ensure a solid foundation for your plans and decisions, even if adjustments are made along the way.

CHECK the legislation of Australia

Study the legal aspects of relationships in Australia, including your rights and resources related to domestic violence, in case of any unfortunate circumstances.

Being aware of the legal aspects and resources related to domestic violence in advance is crucial for personal safety and your relationship development.

Australia places significant importance on addressing domestic violence, offering robust support services and legal protections. Accessing this knowledge can help individuals seek prompt assistance and contribute to a safer society.

CHECK if your partner is ready to register your relationship

Discuss the importance of whether you would like to get married or you will be happy in de facto relationship because your visa options will depend on this decision.

If you have thoroughly checked all these points, and discussed with your partner, so you are happy to move forward, the next step in your migration journey will depend on the current relationship status and your location.

1 If you never see your partner in person

Organize the meeting with your partner in a third country to get to know each other and spend time together – this will be meeting the criteria for 300 visa if you decide to go ahead.

Organize visitor visa subclass 600 to come on holidays and meet with your partner's family/friends to see whether you can fit into his environment.

Testimonials

Yulia Moiseeva and Associates are very professional, detailed, and very responsive. I highly recommend them. You won't regret it. 9 1/2 months of waiting from the application to the decision of my fiancée's Prospective marriage visa subclass 300.

Cesar Raynard Yu

Just received my partner visa 820! I'm over the moon! What a great job has been done, Yulia and her team are amazing and very professional. I received it a way quicker than I thought. Thank you so much for all the help and support.

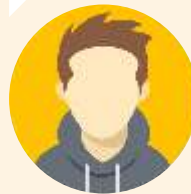

I would not have done it by myself, the amount of papers were overwhelming and easy to get lost in all that preparation. Yulia and her team made a very structured way to prepare all the documents.

Well done!

Anzhela Stepanova

Yulia Moiseeva and her team are a very professional organisation in helping you navigate through the immigration nightmare. My partner and I are very grateful for the assistance that Yulia and her team provide us in lodging our Prospective Marriage Visa. They take you through the process step by step without overwhelming you and also keep you updated throughout the process. Highly recommend Yulia Moiseeva & Associates to anyone applying for an Australian Visa.

Ross Morris

Best of the best! We've applied for partner Visa (801 and 820) as we are in relationships more than 3 years. Yulia and her team helped as to do that. It was big, but quick work. We really appreciate their amazing work. And guess what? We've got our visas only 4 months later! Thank you so much!
